The National Association of Community Health Centers (NACHC) is lauding a move by the Corporation for National and Community Service to fully fund the Community HealthCorps at its requested levels, setting the stage for healthy growth amid high patient demand at health centers. This marks the first time the Community HealthCorps program, the largest health-focused, national AmeriCorps program of its kind, has been fully funded. The $6 million grant was awarded to the Community HealthCorps program despite large odds and a record number of competing applications—nearly twice the amount of eligible program slots. NEW: MAC AIDS Fund Health HIV/AIDS

Deadline: June 15.

Annual Quality and Disparities Reports Include Data on Rates of Patient Safety, Obesity and Health Insurance Improved. Improvements in patient safety continue to lag, according to AHRQ's 2009 National Healthcare Quality Report and National Healthcare Disparities Report. The 2009 reports include a new section on lifestyle modifications, because preventing or reducing obesity is a crucial goal for many Americans and an important task for health care providers. The reports indicate that the lack of health insurance slows improvement in health care quality and reduction of disparities. For many services, not having insurance is the single strongest predictor of poor quality care, exceeding the effects of race, ethnicity, income or education. The quality and disparities reports are available online. Print copies are available by sending an e-mail to ahrqpubs@ahrq.hhs.gov.

New Website Designed to Help Users Understand Healthcare Reform

George Washington University and Robert Wood Johnson Foundation announced the launch this week of Health Reform GPS, a web portal designed to help key stakeholders understand and operationalize health reform legislation. The portal will be a valuable resource for comprehensive information about all phases of the law and the process of implementation. The portal will offer regularly posted short essays, called "Health Reform Implementation Notes," that provide background about the legislation, explain the changes made by the law, describe the federal implementation process and timetable and identify the questions and challenges for policymakers. The portal will also offer an online library, consisting of resources such as federal agency regulations and guidelines, analyses and studies and other materials from key stakeholders. In addition, the site will offer a health reform glossary of terms and will be searchable through a topical index.

Some are Optimistic about Healthcare Reform Law's Impact

A May 4th Washington Post article envisions a new and better healthcare system as a result of the foundation for reform created by the Patient Protection & Affordable Care Act, the nation's healthcare reform bill. The article highlights the potential impact of widespread use of health information technology, the focus on primary care, and the opportunity for better decision-making by patients and doctors because of the availability of better information.

Funding for Hospital/Health Center Collaboration to Reduce Readmissions Forthcoming

As described in a recent Health Affairs GrantWatch blog, the new health reform law provides $500 million to support partnerships between hospitals and community-based organizations that aim to provide evidence-based care for Medicare beneficiaries at high risk of readmission. The provision grew out of the Care Transitions Intervention, which has been successfully implemented in 14 states and led to significantly reduced readmissions. Proven strategies to improve care transitions are described in a new resource developed by The Commonwealth Fund, the John A. Hartford Foundation, and the Health Research and Educational Trust: The Health Care Leader Action Guide to Reduce Avoidable Readmissions.

New Report Delves Into Primary Care Practice Demands

A new report in the April 29th issue of the New England Journal of Medicine offers insight into the non-visit work done by primary care physicians. Physicians in a Philadelphia medical home tracked work over the course of a year. Findings show that each doctor responded to a phone call or laboratory result a combined average of 43.2 times a day. According to the study's author, it is urgent that we understand the actual work of primary care and find ways to support it. The New York Times also reports on the findings.

Time Magazine Highlights Text4Baby

A recent article in Time Magazine titled "Take Two Texts and Call Me in the Morning" highlights the importance of this new initiative in reducing U.S. infant mortality rates. With the U.S. ranking even behind Hungary and Cuba and coming in 30th worldwide in infant mortality, it is hoped that this easy to use feature of free text messaging on a pregnant woman's cell phone will help better these statistics.

American Academy of Pediatrics Offers Free Prevention Resources

2010 health reform legislation mandates coverage of preventive services for infants, young children, and adolescents, including evidence-based preventive care and screenings. The Bright Futures guidelines, designed to help office staff improve developmental screening and preventive services for children under 5 years of age, were developed for the Health & Human Resources Administration (HRSA) by the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP). The materials offered include: Improving Preventive Care In Your Office - Tools for Office Improvement; Working with Practices to Improve Preventive Care - A Leader's Guide; and Training Materials to Improve Preventive Care in Office Practice - Bright Futures Workshop Materials. These training and implementation materials for the Bright Futures Program, funded by the Commonwealth Fund with support from the US Department of Health & Human Services, Health Resources and Services Administration, Maternal & Child Health Bureau are free for all to download.

Breastfeeding and Racial & Ethnic Differences

Research that was recently published in a Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report (MMWR) examines racial and ethnic differences around breastfeeding. The analysis found that even though approximately 73% of women breastfed their babies, many ceased doing so after only a few weeks or months. Hispanic women had a higher initiation rate than non-Hispanic whites while non-Hispanic blacks had a lower breastfeeding initiation rate than non-Hispanic whites.

AHRQ Offers Health Literacy Universal Precautions Toolkit

The Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ) is now offering a Health Literacy Universal Precautions Toolkit based on the principles of universal precautions and specific actions that providers can take to make health information more understandable for all of their patients. It is designed to be used by all levels of staff in practices providing primary care for adults and/or pediatrics.

New Report Offers Guidance on HIT Collaboration with Health Centers

Earlier this year, the National Association of State Health Policy (NASHP) hosted a webinar that convened individuals from Massachusetts, Oregon, and Tennessee to discuss ways in which state agencies and federally qualified health centers

(FQHCs) are working together to use HIT and health information exchange (HIE) funding opportunities from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) to achieve mutual goals for health system improvements. A new issue brief draws from and builds on this webinar to offer an overview of opportunities, explore these states' experiences, and provide concluding observations. The brief was developed through a National Cooperative Agreement sponsored by the Health Resources and Services Administration's (HRSA) Bureau of Primary Health Care (BPHC).

NEW: Community Health Centers Receive High Marks as Patient-Centered Medical Homes

Commonwealth Fund Survey Identifies Areas of High Performance

A new survey by the Commonwealth Fund finds that *Community Health Centers are making significant strides in serving as high performing patient-centered medical homes (PCMH), but face barriers when it comes to helping patients navigate the health care system outside the walls of the center. Health centers that are closely affiliated with hospitals, however, face fewer challenges in getting their patients appointments for specialty procedures like X-rays, diagnostic tests, and visits with specialist physicians.

The Commonwealth Fund's national survey of health centers identified areas of strength as well as opportunities to improve their capacity to serve as PCMHs. The PCMH is generally recognized by quality of care factors such as timely access care to on site care, coordination among specialty care providers and local hospitals, quality improvement activities, and health information technology (HIT) to streamline and coordinate care. NEW: Federal Process and Timeline for Community Health Center

Tue, 25 May 2010: Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) moves toward integrating "Look-Alikes" into its electronic systems.

HRSA has issued a Program Assistance Letter (PAL), which lays out the process and timeline for taking the Look-Alike program electronic through the Electronic Handbook System. The process aims to make it easier for Community Health Center Look-Alikes in a number of areas that include recertification, facilitating changes in scope of project requests, and improved communication overall. The transition will begin in July 2010. You may download the PAL here.

CBO Report Skews Health Reform Funding Levels:

As we have reported many times, the health reform legislation created the Community Health Center Fund. The fund includes $9.5 billion in operations funding and $1.5 billion in capital, which is \$11 billion in total direct appropriations from FY 2011 through FY 2015. This is currently the only funding directly appropriated (read: real money) to health centers in health reform. Health centers are authorized to receive $3.86 billion in FY 2011 within the health reform law, but this is not real money. In reality, there will be $1 billion available to health centers in FY 2011 from the Community Health Center Fund, in addition to regular appropriated funding, which was $2.19 billion in FY 2010. Health centers are urging Congress to keep our discretionary funding at least at that FY2010 level of $2.19 billion, meaning there would be a total of $3.19 billion in total Health Centers program funding for FY2011, which is below the authorized level but more accurately reflects what will actually be spent next year. ...For this reason, the recent CBO blog and report that indicates health centers could receive $34 billion over the next 10 years is somewhat misleading. – Krystal Knight, Health Centers On The Hill

HHS hopes the new portal will influence states' creation of health insurance exchanges; increase enrollment in Medicaid, CHIP and high-risk pools; and boost the sale of private policies to the uninsured. HHS is accepting comments on the interim final rule through June 4th.
